The Anthracite Situation

THE attention of the nation as well as several foreign governments is focused upon the struggle for supremacy now being waged in the anthracite coal region between capital and organized labor. The contest has numerous phases, but the question of whether or not the United Mine Workers of America shall dictate terms for the mining region when it is said to be in a minority so far as numerical strength is concerned has overshadowed all points involved; in fact the actual weakness or strength of the union in the disturbed district is the important factor confronting the operators and will determine either the speedy settlement or long continuance of the strike.

The aim of the union is obviously to place itself in such a position that no miner in the anthracite region can henceforth afford to be outside of its ranks, and to enable it to practically dictate terms to the operators. The latter, on the other hand, are striving to establish the proposition that the miners' union is not a dominant nor even an important factor in the hard coal producing field.

Until the renewal of the present agitation, growing out of the expiration of the second three years' agreement between operators and men, over 80 per cent of the miners in the hard coal region were non-unionists, or, at least, were not enrolled in the union. Indeed, from the time of the settlement of the last great strike up to a few weeks ago the union, it is claimed, had been steadily losing ground in the anthracite field. But recently agents of the union have been carrying on a recruiting campaign, and it is only reasonable to assume that hundreds of names have been added to the union enrolment.

T. L. Lewis, who succeeded John Mitchell as president of the United Mine Workers of America, claims not alone the right to speak for the miners in the anthracite field who are members of the union, but for those who are not. In fact, he claims the right to speak for all and in behalf of all, and announces that the only agreement with the operators must be over his signature as "T. L. Lewis, president," which will carry with it the inference that he is acting in behalf of all the miners, and the implication that the operators cannot do business at all unless they do business with him.

Evidently there is occasion here for the intervention of the representatives of another party, and one which is more deeply concerned even than the operators or the miners in a speedy and a satisfactory settlement of this difficulty. We allude to the public, which is seldom considered, but upon whose shoulders must eventually fall the serious consequences of a strike in the hard coal region.

The public should insist upon being heard in this matter, and it should act promptly and positively.

THE FRAMERS of the proposed tariff bill evidently considered the domestic production of works of art by the old masters is a negligible industry; hence the abolition of all duty. Nevertheless, it is generally conceded that objets d'art are luxuries and there are those political economists who hold that it is better to tax luxuries than to tax the necessaries of daily existence.

THE LAW-ABIDING Italians of the country have entered upon a movement for the extermination of the "Black Hand" villainy, and they can rest assured that in every step they take with this end in view they will have the sympathy of the American people.

To say that there are sensations and sensations is to enunciate a platitude. There are in every country newspapers with respect to whose circulation sensations play the part which Mr. Weller's payment played in the domestic economy of Mr. Pell. The world takes the information supplied by these papers with the proverbial grain of salt, and manifests less excitement with more experience. Within the last few days, however, the public has been supplied with a sensation of the first magnitude, from the floor of the House of Commons. The first lord of the admiralty, speaking with all the reserve of ministerial responsibility, has informed an astonished audience that so far from what is known as the two-power standard being maintained in the British navy, the new German shipbuilding program is seriously threatening an even one-power standard. When it is remembered that it has always been a political maxim with both political parties in the United Kingdom that the two-power standard should be maintained inviolable, the magnitude of the issue raised will become immediately apparent..

The British navy estimates of the present century have averaged the huge sum of $165,000,000 a year, with a steady tendency to increase. If, as is inevitable if the two-power standard is to be maintained, these estimates are to be substantially increased, the description of them by the prime minister as a "vast, horrible, devastating and sterilizing expenditure" will be seen to owe nothing to exaggeration. The question as to how the German admiralty succeeded in deceiving the British intelligence department as to its building program is a matter of quite minor importance in com-parison with the facts revealed. The question resolves itself into something far larger than a struggle between two countries for supremacy at sea. It resolves itself into a question of the morality of the war expenditure into which the fears and suspicions and perhaps the ambitions of the nations of Europe are hurrying them.

At a time when vast numbers of the people of Europe are sunk in extreme poverty the devotion of untold millions to the production of war material is little less than a crime. And yet the statesmen of the world, perfectly conscious as they are of this, look from one to the other in a state of helplessness. For centuries the orthodox churches have preached peace and blessed battleflags; proclaimed the omnipotence of God and insisted on the power of evil. Christian Science is the protest against this. It is the most practical religion, philosophy, science that the world has known since the days of the apostles, and in the forty years since its discovery it has done more to demonstrate the omnipotence of God and the powerlessness of evil than was accomplished in the eighteen centuries preceding. While giving its support to every human endeavor for the amelioration of human suffering, it insists none the less strongly that all these endeavors are devoted to a struggle with effects which leaves the cause of every ill effect entirely untouched. The extraordinary success of Christian Science is attributable to the fact that its attack is being delivered against the cause of these evil effects, the lie which is mesmerizing the human race into attributing a power to evil which it does not possess. If Christendom is sincere in its declaration that God is omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent good, then it must follow without a possibility of question that evil is nothing but a delusion. "One infinite God, good," writes Mrs. Eddy, on page 340 of Science and Health, "unifies men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfils the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thy-self'; . . . annuls the curse on man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed."

'Let Christendom ask itself the question, Does it believe that God is infinite? And then proceed to put its faith into practise.

THE CONTEMPLATED English newspaper law that forbids contests for prizes involving the purchase of coupons may hurt the circulation of some publications, but it would relieve a patient and long-suffering public of a periodical annoyance.

A Taxicab Merger and Its Result

IT WOULD appear from present indications that while the taxicab affords rapid and comfortable transit it will hardly meet the demand in large cities for a cheap service. The proposed merger of all the companies operating taxicabs in New York city, if carried out as now seems certain, will be followed, it is understood, by an advance in fares. It is said that the rate has already been raised by some of the companies, while there is a general extra charge for night service. The fare in New York city was fixed at 50 cents for the first mile and 40 cents for each additional mile, for from one to four persons. It was anticipated that this fare might be reduced in time, or when the companies had learned how to economize in the operation of the machines. The contrary, however, has proved to be the case. It is now proposed to raise the fare for the first mile to 70 cents, the reason advanced by the companies being that the "dead mileage," the cost of gasoline, the wear and tear of the cabs and the wages of the chauffeurs leave, under the existing scale, scarcely any margin of profit.

New York has always been a city of high-priced cab service, and New York's example in this particular has been followed by other cities in which the same excuse for high charges cannot reasonably be put forward. Municipal regulation of fares should, of course, prevent extortion, but if it can be shown by the companies that they are unable to operate the taxicabs at a lower rate without loss, a rate which will enable them to make a fair profit will eventually have to be allowed. But this will impair the usefulness of the taxicab as a popular conveyance.

Yet the disappointment resulting from the failure of the taxicab to meet a long-felt want will not be entirely unmixed, for it should give a fresh impetus to the movement looking to the installation of public motor cabs and buses in all the great cities of the country. Here there is opportunity for a service more rapid, if more expensive, than the trolley, and yet not nearly so costly as the taxicab.

The limitation placed upon this service at present—for motor buses are in operation in many places—is due mainly to bad pavement; but even this may lead to good, since it should have the effect of arousing general interest in the question of better streets and better roadways.

Who Are

Offenders?

News from New York of the creation of a national organization for detecting fraud and uncovering municipal evils, with a projected program for operation in twenty of the largest cities, is interesting; but that municipal activities or lethargies are to be minutely scanned and exhibited for criticism and possible censure is not an undertaking that need surprise any one. We have had sporadic investigation in many cities during the first decade of the century and for many reasons-for the purpose of showing off the powers of arraignment of young writers framing their style on Carlyle; for the purpose of more circulation and influence to magazines which have projected themselves into journalism; for the purpose of ousting office-holders who had neglected to serve their party in their reckless personal greed; and occasionally for the purpose of better city government and higher living. Therefore, it is not proposed municipal investigation which causes surprise, but the announcement that the movement is to be backed by Messrs. John

D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie and Jacob H. Schiff. When Mr. Carnegie retired from active business life at the beginning of the decade he gave an interview to the newspapers, in which he stated he had devoted enough of his life to money-getting, and purposed devoting the femainder to the acquisition of spiritual enlightenment. But if Mr. Carnegie had not received spiritual enlightenment from his work, was he likely to find it outside his work? Returning to the fields of labor today to discover how badly other men are managing their work may be a service he designs for the general good, but it carries with it no such vital import as does the association of Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Schiff with such a movement. These men may give service of the highest order; for it will be of no avail to give money for an investigation with one hand and withdraw the privilege of investigation with the other. That is understood. Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Schiff have it in their power to open doors for a thoroughgoing search for offenders, for it is presumable they mean to look into commercial interference with municipal officeholders.

Let the investigation begin with Pittsburg, that interesting center of colossal industry. There an independent investigation has already been going on. It is desirable to know in the final analysis who the real offenders are. Should the national organization for detecting fraud incriminate men directly responsible to the gentlemen who are financially backing their investigation, would the investigators be able to say to Messrs. Carnegie, Rockefeller and Schiff, "What are you going to do about it?" If such is the sincere intent of the projected investigations, the public will await the result with interest. Moreover the public will pay great honor to the men who funded the undertaking.

THE ONLY trouble with the municipal house cleaning undertaken by Spokane is that it may not last. A city, like a well ordered home, seems to need sweeping and dusting systematically.

It must have been a cynic who named the region where gold has recently been found, the Humbug district. However, the designation has been apparently repudiated.

It MAY reasonably be expected that Yale will now have her innings in the gentle game of politics.

As to the Value of Mr. Hill's Roads

IN THE HEARING of a complaint by the city of Spokane against the transcontinental lines, before the interstate commerce commission recently, some very interesting facts were brought out regarding the true value of rail-road property. The Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railways were the corporations principally concerned in the inquiry, and at its beginning the engineers of those corporations were asked to submit estimates of the cost of reproduction of their systems. The expert of the Northern Pacific placed the value of its properties at $446,000,000. This included coal lands valued at $50,000,000, rights of way, terminals, etc. The engineer of the state of Washington railroad commission declined to express an opinion as to the value of the right of way and coal properties, but he put the value of the roadway and equipment at $69,000,000 less than that named by the company's engineer. The commission, after taking the two estimates into consideration, concluded that a fair value of the Northern Pacific property on which it must base its rates is $325,000,000, a cut of $121,-000,000 in the estimate made by the corporation's expert. Of this sum of $325,000,000, the bonded debt of the Northern Pacific is $187,000,000, leaving $138,000,000 of true value to represent the capital stock of $250,000,000. In the case of the Great Northern a similar scaling down of figures was evidenced.

The point that will strike the average man most foreibly, especially if he be gifted with the faculty of seeing the humorous side of serious things, is that these railroads should be so anxious to swell their values for rate-fixing purposes when they are known to be even more anxious to reduce their values for purposes of taxfixing. The Hill roads, of course, are not alone in this matter. Nobody ever heard of a railroad representative—at least in past times trying to prove before an equalization board, for instance, that the taxable value of the properties of his road was lower by millions than it should be, and Mr. Hill's lines have not been exceptions to the

It will be much better all around-much better for the railroad corporations, much better for the bond and share holders, much better for the shipper, and much better for the public—when railroad values shall be the same for all purposes.

And the time when this shall be the case is approaching rapidly.

NEITHER babies nor cows are expected to turn out in large numbers for the public hearings on the bills dealing with the milk standard, though both are supposed to be very much interested in the

PRESIDENT C. S. Howe of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, speaking at the monthly dinner of the Boston Merchants' Association to the question of industrial education, which was the subject under discussion, struck the keynote when he said: "This is not merely an educational question; it affects not only the child but the nation." To bring the matter nearer home, it is of incalculable importance not only to the children but to the future of the industries of Massachusetts and New England. Commissioner of Education Draper of New York had already said some very instructive things with regard to the necessity of educating children's hands as well as heads. "Germany," he said, "has experienced our difficulties about schools not supporting industries, and fifteen years ago the Emperor directed the schools to turn out more 'industrials' and fewer 'intellectuals.'" "We can't do the thing in that arbitrary way," remarked Commissioner Draper, "but it looks as though we should have to find a way to do it, or face very serious consequences."

For the Boy as Well as the Industry

Commissioner Draper very gracefully gave Massachusetts credit for being the first state to make a capable and exhaustive inquiry into this subject. The reports made have been illuminating. Our industrial commissions have done admirable work. "But," said the commissioner, "I am obliged to add that somewhere between the commissions and the gilded dome a very grave mistake was made." We must have more courage, he insisted, if we are going to succeed in educating the children of Massachusetts to useful occupations, and he added:

An always up-to-date public record of all the children in a city, as in Germany, is absolutely necessary. This needs to be followed by a system which will see that every one of school age is in some suitable school during the school period. The compulsory attendance age might well commence earlier than now, and it should continue until the child is 17 or 18, and definitely qualified to start upon some manual vocation or go on to the higher literary, scientific, or technical schools

President Howe has in mind not merely the welfare of American industries but the welfare of the American boy, who "has a right to demand and some day will demand, in tones which cannot be ignored, that society give him a training which will fit him to do something whereby he can make not only an honest but a substantial living."

In our comments upon this matter recently, we pointed out that under present circumstances the factory is practically the only school for the poor boy who is striving to learn a trade or to gain pro-ficiency in any industrial line. Touching on this very point, President Howe said: "At its best, the apprenticeship system is the true way to teach the workman of the future; at its worst it is not an apprenticeship system at all. There is no reason why an apprenticeship system should not be developed in every factory.

There would be less reason for neglect in this respect if the state should do its part fully. The apprenticeship system is not at its best under present conditions. It is not meeting the requirements of the times. A real benefit to the worker, the employer of labor and the nation as a whole would result here from industrial education such as is within the reach of all in Germany today.

A LEGAL document recently filed in Brookline describes that suburb as being located "at the present time in the county of Norfolk." This suggests an appalling possibility. What if some one should move it to another county during the night?

OUR GENIAL President evidently proposes to give a practical illustration of the truism that "brevity is the soul of wit" by making his messages short. It is a fashion of humor that Congress and the public will approve.

It is quite possible that many things are needed in the anthracite region, but one of the things most needed at present is good common

This is regarded as an important forward step in the direction of curtailing appropriations for the expenses of the government so as to prevent a deficit in the treasury.

Practically it will be a committee of comptrollers who will be expected to examine into the merits of every proposed appropriation and avoid all duplication in items of expenditure authorized by Congress. The membership is being selected with great care. Senator Hale of Maine, chairman of the committee on appropriations, will be ex-officio chairman of this committee of comptrollers.

Chairmen of other committees will also serve ex-officio. These are Senators Aldrich of Rhode Island, finance committee; Frye of Maine, committee on commerce; Dolliver of Iowa, agriculture committee; Gallinger of New Hamp-shire, District of Columbia committee; Cullom of Illinois, foreign relations committee; Clapp of Minnesota, committee on Indian affairs; Warren of Wyoming, committee on military affairs; Perkins of California, committee on naval affairs; McCumbor of North Dakota, committee on pensions; Penrose of Pennsylvania, postoffice committee, and Scott of West Virginia, committee on public

CAMBRIDGE WOMEN SEEK SUPPORT FOR KINDERGARTEN BILL

Active Workers for Children Hope to Arouse Interest in the Measure for More Schools.

PRAISE ITS MERITS

Cambridge women who are actively interested in the welfare of children are working to arouse local interest in the bill, which provides that all cities of the state having more than 10,000 inhabitants must maintain at least one kindergarten school.

The members of the Cantabrigia Club, Miss M. F. Leland, principal of the Taylor school in East Cambridge, and Miss Edith Leslie, a member of the commit tee which presented this bill to the state board of education, are especially interested in this work.

This bill was presented to the state board of education for its approval by a committee, of which Joseph Lee of Boston was chairman, and it is still in the hands of the state board.

It is of especial interest to Cambridge because in the effort to reduce the city's expenses and to avoid an increase of the immense city debt, the abandonment of all the kindergarten schools has been

Cambridge has 16 kindergarten schools, with a total enrolment of about 800 pupils. The passage of this bill by the Legislature would be the first step toward putting these on a secure footing. Prof. Joseph Henry Beale of the Harvard Law School, a member of the committee supporting the bill, has said:

"The work in the kindergarten school is just as important as that of any other department of the public schools."

Miss Leland said: "I wish our citizens who doubt the value of the kindergarten

Miss Adelaide Hibbard in Presence of Boston Officials Names New Craft Engine Forty-Seven.

GREETINGS CORDIAL

Witnesses Cheer and Whistles Blow as Vessel Is Struck by Bottle and Slides Swiftly Into the Water.

Boston's newest fireboat was launched shortly after 10 o'clock this morning at the vards of the Atlantic Works, East Boston. Miss Adelaide Hibbard, daughter of the mayor, christened the vessel Engine 47 in the presence of Mayor George A. Hibbard.

Commissioner Samuel D. Parker and Chief John A. Mullen of the fire department, representatives of both branches of the city government, and a large crowd of spectators were present. In the stream, shrieking greetings to the new firefighter, were Engine 44, the regular fireboat, and the spare fireboat, Engine 31. A few moments before 10 o'clock various members of the official party arrived and mounted the flag draped platform, which had been erected at the bow of the new vessel. Every point of vantage was occupied by a crowd of men and boys, and a sprinkling of women, together with a perfect battery of press photographers. After the official party had posed several times for the cameras, the workmen began to knock away the blocks. The ways had been well greased and the last block had hardly been knocked away when the lead-colored hull began to move. Miss Hibbard smashed the christening bottle with complete success and as if the impact affected the vessel

The air was filled with shrieks from the whistles on the tugs and the nearby factories, and all the boys cheered at

The affair was voted a complete success by everybody present except the photographers. After some minutes of handshaking and greetings, the christening party boarded their carriages and automobiles and returned to the city

Engine 47 is 113 feet long over all, 26 feet beam and 9 feet draft. The total cost will be in the vicinity of $90,000. The hull was built by the R. S. Field & Peterson. This work will take from six weeks to two months, and as soon as the boat is ready it will be put into

MRS. TAFT VISITING AT NORTH SHORE

MR. BIRRELL'S VIEW OF TARIFF REFORM IN GREAT BRITAIN

Chief Secretary for Ireland Thinks Economic Question Should Be Separated from Party Prejudice.

QUESTIONS MIXED

LONDON-Mr. Birrell, M. P., chief secretary for Ireland, addressing his constituents, said: It was very unfortunate that when pursuing economic truth it should be made a party question, discussed with passion, prejudice, and party hatred. It was difficult to distinguished in the case of their tariff reform friends between zeal for economic truth and their desire to turn out the government. The two things somehow got mixed up together, and yet they had nothing whatever to do with each other. In the region of economics they could not do what they liked.

We were an old country with our industries matured, and the departure of a country like this from economic law might very easily end in complete fiscal disaster. It was a matter of danger for this reason. Every man was a protectionist to the bottom of his heart in his own industry and in his neighborhood. They could not help it. That was what made the subject so dangerous. The whole controversy between protection and free trade was affected very materially by the consideration which was found in every breast. People wanted About a Revolution, as He protection for the things they made, and free trade for the things they bought.

The question was: "Is it an econom truth that the introduction into this country of foreign goods which you DRESDEN — That Senor Cipriano might presumably make yourselves injures the cause of labor? Does it keep be employed?" He said most emphatically "No." That was the salient point,

CHAMPIONSHIP COLLEGE FENCERS ARE PREPARING FOR FINAL CONTESTS

West Point, Cornell and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Are Favorites for Championship.

H. G. KNOX THE STAR

West Point, Cornell, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Annapolis, Yale and University of Pennsylvania having qualified in the preliminary events of the Intercollegiate Fencing Association, are now busy making preparations for the final contests which will take place in New York March 26 and 27.

No upsets occurred in the preliminaries and the finals give promise of furnishing some of the best bouts ever witnessed in the college league. With the exception of Harvard, all of the teams showed their expected form, although in the Boston preliminaries.

Jugding from the preliminary bouts, West Point should be the favorite for the championship. Cornell has one of the strongest teams in the asociation, yet West Point had no difficulty in securing 14 bouts to Cornell's eight in the preliminary contests at West Point. Technology has been considered as having one of the strongest teams, but some change of sentiment has been felt as a result of the closeness of the contest with Yale and Harvard, where there was a margin of only one bout.

H. G. Knox of the Technology team defeat this year and that was to a lefthanded fencer. It was his first experience in that line, which undoubtedly accounts for his not being able to defeat his adversary. With Loring he makes a Grudnau, although weak on the defensive is a fencer of no mean ability. Cocroft of the army and Brandt of the navy are the two men that the Institute will find the hardest to beat, as both are exceptional fencers, having beaten Wendell, the crack Pennsylvania left handed

AUGUSTA, Ga.-The Boston Nationals have a taste of a real baseball game this afternoon, playing the Augusta team of the South Atlantic League. This is the first match the players have had outside of their own ranks and much interest is being taken in it. Tuckey was selected by Manager Bowerman to start the game.

Friday's practise game resulted in some fast work in the field and at the bat. The regulars won by a score of 6 to 1, giving them three successive victories over the substitutes. Barrett and Ferguson pitched for the regulars and allowed but two hits in the nine innings. McCarthy secured one of them. He is playing a fine game at third base and if he can continue to hit as he has during the past few days, he should make a

Magnets Do Heavy Lifting

Five 72-inch locomotive tires being handled at one pull in a Cleveland (O.) construction yard.

CLEVELAND, O .- Use of the electromagnet, once-regarded merely as a perhaps instructive toy, has lately been applied to industrial work on a large scale. Some of the smaller ones are used in machine shops and foundries and about the minor technical undertakings outdoors. For picking up dropped tools in wells and similar excavations, for separating iron from brass filings and similarly sorting tacks or small nails when mixed with brass screws, these appliances, which are equipped with drop cords capable of being attached to electric /lamp fixtures, have proved so useful that they are being manufactured for the market.

A more spectacular use of the electromagnet, however, is in connection with foundry work and in railroad shops. A crane built similarly to an ordinary locomotive crane, but equipped with a magnet of great power, is operated electrically, and is capable of lifting masses of metal many tons in weight. These it grips as securely as any grapple, but it is able to release its load on the instant merely by the action of a switch. stant merely by the action of a switch.

An electro-magnet crane of this type, manufactured by an engineering company of Cleveland, is being used in rail-road shops for handling car wheels, engine wheel tires and all manner of heavy parts and enormous castings. MAGNETIC DEVICE FOR WORKING GUNS NOT PRACTICABLE

Generated by the Falls of Niagara.

At regular intervals appears a new inventor of an "electro-magnetic gun" which is always, according to the prospectus, "destined to revolutionize modern warfare." The idea is always the same.

The guns depend on the principle of a soft-iron core being forcibly attracted the iron will be attracted with uniform force and will gain in velocity as it traverses the length of the coil.

The theory is that this velocity, by making the coil long enough, may be made equal to that of a projectile from a powder-gun. In commenting on a recent scheme of this kind, the Electrical impossible expenditure of energy. Says

"On account of the weight of an electromagnetic gun, it would necessarily be of the stationary type. Therefore, the principles involved will be applied to the case of a 6-inch sea-coast gun of the 1905 model. The projectile in this gun has a weight of 106 pounds, a travel of 256 inches within the bore, and leaves the muzzle with a velocity of 2900 feet

"The kinetic energy stored in the moving projectile as it starts its free pounds. This energy is acquired during 0.014 second, the time of travel within the bore. Thus the average rate of acquisition of energy is 970,000,000 footpounds per second. The average power during this small interval of time is, therefore 1,750,000 horse-power.

"It is thus evident that for the operation of a single 6-inch gun of modern type there would be required a generating-station capable of supplying energy at the instantaneous rate of 1,750,000, horse-power, or about 1,360,000 kilowatts -a value equal to more than one-third a gun electromagnetically is commercially quite impracticable.

"Furthermore, certain serious technical limitations would be encountered in the design of an electromagnetic gun. "The cast-iron gun of past ages with the powder-factory as a source of energy would be decidedly cheaper, more convenient, and much more deadly than the electro-magnetic gun with its colos-sal electric power-house adjunct."

ADVISES NEW YORK TO FREE TRACTION FROM FINANCIERS

Public Service Head Says Harvard Students Hear That City Should Be Independent of Franchise "Grabbers" in Future.

NEW YORK-Chairman Willcox of the public service commission, speaking at a meeting of the Twelfth Assembly District Republican Club in Acme Hall, Brooklyn, urged the carrying out of the commission's plans for subway extensions in Brooklyn; said that the city territory had been "divided up" among corporations and individuals interested in transit building, and that the city "must not be in a position to allow our necessities to become the opportunity of franchise grabbers."

Mr. Willcox pointed out the need of the development of rapid transit lines northward and eastward and southward from Manhattan, so that the city may counteract the "great advantage" which the tunnels under the Hudson will give to New Jersey and to "retain its popu-Start Movement for Eco- lation and consequently its taxable valnes." He added:

"The present city administration has issued corporate stock to an amount of about $300,000,000, and of that amount less than 71/2 per cent was for rapid transit purposes and only 21/4 per cent of the whole amount was attributable to the initiative of the city administration. "If our transit development is to depend entirely upon private capital, with no power of the city to protect its interests against gentlemen's agreements over the division of territory, then we must emphasize more and more the absolute necessity of the city being in a position to build its own lines.'

King Edward's Birthday Is Celebrated in June

Anybody seeking precedents for a change in the inauguration date will find one in the action of King Edward VII. of England whose birthday occurs in November, but who has kindly arranged that the people celebrate it in June. There is nothing more delightful than an April or early May day in the city of Washington, and if the date were postponed to this season of the year thousands of people would be afforded an opportunity to see Washington at its best and at the same time to spend pleasant days and evenings on the beautifully decorated streets and in the delightful surrounding parks.

SEES TWO BIG PROBLEMS FOR UNITED STATES

Deforestation Is Resulting in More Bad Roads Throughout Nation.

"The greatest waste in the United States today is in our forests, and comes from the indiscriminate use of paper. Unless we wake up and stop wasting our national resources in timber we shall find that our lands have been deforested and the government will have the water as well as the public roads problem to handle." Such was the gist of the plea which A. S. Cushman, United States assistant director of the office of public roads, made for the preservation of national forests before a Harvard audience in Pierce Hall, Cambridge, Friday even-

Mr. Cushman also said the drainage problem is the greatest one with which the office of public roads has to deal. The poor drainage is the result of the rapid cutting away of the forests, which permits the water to make quagmires of the roads. This is particularly true in Indiana, Mississippi and Alabama. He also points out that the greatest waste in the United States is in the national forests and comes from the indiscriminate use of paper. Nearly every large newspaper in the country, Mr. Cushman said, sends out a Sunday edition which will at least weigh one and one-quarter pounds for each copy and all the Sunday newspapers will use up 13 acres of the finest forest lands in this country each week. Other nations do not do this on such a large scale. He admitted some of it is necessary, yet much of it, he thinks, is depraying. He contends there is a legitimate use for this paper, as well as for the forests, and yet the mad desire of American civilization for sensationalism is leveling the timber lands of the country on every hand.

During his discourse he quoted the example of China, which for 300 years leveled its forests until the water disappeared and no sign of a blade of vegetation could be made to appear. Today the natives go out on the barren lands and work like ants on the wasted hills terracing them down to catch and hold the water, that they might eke out a mere pittance for a living.

In his opinion some such fate may be in store for the United States if the forests are not conserved.

ALTEMUS-HALL RECITAL.

N Jordan Hall Friday afternoon Miss Ethel Altemus, pinnist, and Glenn Hall, tenor, were heard in a joint recital assisted by Richard Hagerman, accompanist. The program:

Schubert, Du liebst mich nicht, Der Juengling an der Quelle; Liszt, Gestorben war ich; Schumann, Auftraege, Mr. Hall. Rameau, Gavotte and Variations: Scarlatti, Sonata A major, Miss Altemus. Jensen, Staendchen; Strauss, Freundliche Vision; Tschaikowsky, So Schnell Vergessen; Erich Wolff, Trinklied, Mr. Hall. Schumann, Carnival, Miss Altemus. Old English, Phyllis has Such Charming Graces, Love Has Eyes; MacDowell, A Maid Sings Light; Tours, Mother o' Mine, Mr. Hall. Spangenberg, Albumblatt; Leschetizky, Arabesque, Scherzo, Miss Altemus.

Miss Altemus is well acquainted with modern technique, and her playing of two pieces by Leschetisky seemed a fitting tribute. As if this were too well realized by the audience, all did not remain to the end. Miss Altemus' technique is not yet a means to an end; she is interested in her mechanism as such, and the playing becomes dry and unemotional. There were moments, as in Schumann's Carnaval, when she seemed to lose herself in the music and to express both feeling and musical insight. Like many of the Leschetizky school, her playing suffers from extreme lightness, and there is not much color contrast; but it is impossible not to admire her superb control of the playskill of the individual fingers.

"VITA NUOVA."

The young Italian composer Wolff-Ferrari has used the text of Dante's "Vita Nuova" (New Life) for one of the most beautiful musical works that younger Italy has produced. The cantata will be sung in Boston on March 25 at Jordan Hall, by the Cecilia Society. This chorus of carefully chosen singers, under the direction of Mr. Wallace Goodrich, give their entire attention to choral works of the highest character. The present work employs a large orchestra of the Symphony men. Mr. Goodrich was a fellow student of Wolff-Ferrari in Munich in 1894-5 Greaves (1604); "My Love is Neither and says of him that even then people knew he would make his mark in the field of composition. Today he is distinctly modern in style, with the modernity of the Italian school, not the French nor German, but then he was a classicist of a severe type. Practising after classic models is of course the best possible foundation a young composer can lay. Indeed, in 1894, Ferrari had never listened to a Wagner opera, for he heard all the modern repertoire for the gram of the Symphony orchestra to be first time upon going to Munich from

The first two numbers of the "Vita Nuova," the opening chorus and the first aria, are built squarely upon Bach, whom musicians indeed love to call the most modern of the classic composers. Wolff-Ferrari has produced several operas, but this work with Dante's words is nearest

Art, Artists and Their Work

THE COPLEY SOCIETY.

The German art exhibition is being visited by hundreds daily and interest is increasing as the time draws near for

There are many scholars from the schools and colleges who have availed themselves of the invitations to attend, so that 2380 public school students, 1010 from private schools and 850 college students, with a total of 4249, have attended, besides the general public.

An informal lecture on modern German art will be given among the pictures at Copley Hall this afternoon by Alfred Johnson, Ph. D. The talk will be of the nature of an exposition rather than of a criticism. Dr. Johnson, as a student of literature and pupil of Hermann Grimm in Germany in the late '90s, became personally acquainted with many of the painters who are represented in the Copley Society's exhibition.

Today will also be a tea day at the hall. The pourers will be Mrs. Nielsen and Fanny Bowditch, who willbe assisted by Mrs. Hildegarde Henderson, Miss Van Rensselaer and Miss Hannah Sessions. This will be the last of the successful teas held in connection with the present ex-

The notably good work of the society is receiving the thanks of the artists and people of culture and taste for its efficient work in placing before the publie from time to time these representative works of the leading artists of the world. The reports on canals and waterways submitted to the commission by Richard the second story or rotunda. A. Hale, civil engineer, contains a statement regarding the possibility of reviving the old Middlesex canal, and a detailed scheme for the construction of a canal across the state from Boston to the Hudson river. On the subject of the Middlesex canal, Mr. Hale says: "The difficulties of obtaining the original route, or an approximation to it, the large cost of water supply wihich at low stages of flow would be insufficient, and the general reconstruction would amount to a very large sum from which but a small return would be received judging from past experiences with the canal in comparison with railroad transportation.

NEW LYNN COURT CASE UNSETTLED

LYNN, Mass .- With the Essex county commissioners sticking to their original position in regard to paying a rental of $3000 for Lynn's new courthouse and the city still determined upon charging them eight per cent of the cost of the structure, or $3600, there is a possibility of the new building not being occupied immediately upon its completion.

THOUSANDS OF IMMIGRANTS LAND

NEW YORK-Nearly 10,000 homeseekers, chiefly from the Italian earthquake zone, arrived Friday on six liners. It was not a record, but it was the largest number of steerage passengers that has arrived at this port in two years. Next in numbers to the Italian immigrants were the Jews.

The ships and their steerage lists were as follows:

The Venezia from Naples, with 1380. The Lazio, from Naples and Genoa, The Graf Waldersee, from Hamburg.

The Lithuania, of the Russian-Asiatic from Mediterranean ports, with 1350. The Lituania, of the Russia Asiatic line, from Russian ports, with 928.

STOCK MARKET IS NARROW AND DULL DURING SESSION

Hill Stocks Show Rather Surprising Strength Dur ing Early Trading When General Tone Is Heavy.

BOSTON IS QUIET

The New York stock market was dul and generally heavy during the two-hour session today. It was believed that the rapid advance of the last day or two was the result of a good deal of short covering and that this interest has been largely reduced as a result. Consequent ly prices were allowed to sag from the beginning of business today.

The Hill stocks were an exception to the early market weakness and their firmness and activity rather surprised the traders. Northern Pacific opened unchanged at 1381/2 and rose to 140 during the first hour. Great Northern preferred opened at 140% and advanced to 142 Union Pacific, which made a very encouraging advance yesterday and lost its gain before the close of the market opened a quarter lower at 178 and after advancing a quarter declined to 1773/4.

Reading was active and irregular, fluc-the session. The rather limited supply of floating stock and the large short in-terest causes the price to advance easily Wabash pref. 441/4 441/4 44 447/6 terest causes the price to advance easily Wabash pref.... when shorts cover. Interborough-Met ropolitan, which showed evidences of weakening yesterday, breaking over two points, opened a quarter lower at 42 and declined to 41 on a limited volume o trading. Both of the Steel issues de clined fractionally. Amalgamated Cop per was slightly firmer in the earl trading around 681/4 to 685/8.

. The Boston market was quiet an price changes were small. North Butt was off an eighth at the opening at 671/ and dropped a point and a half to 66 Other coppers were generally lower. Lake was up 3/4 at 171/4. United Shoe Machinery was 3/4 higher at 543/4. To-ward noon some of the leading New York stocks showed a firmer tone, bu the market was narrow and dull.

The closing of both markets was ge erally weak, but the net changes w mostly fractional. The total sales New York stocks were 217,000 shares.

Falling Off in Earnings. but Improvement Is Expected This Year.

SMALL DEFICIT ARE A PRIOR LIEN

The Lackawanna Steel Company expects this year to show a different kind of balance sheet from the exhibit it was obliged to make last year on account of the business depression.

During the next 12 months an improvement in the iron and steel industry is expected, and the Lackawanna Steel Company will shortly show larger earnings. This will be necessary if the directors hope to sell a block of first consolidated 5s and thus retire the notes. The works at Buffalo are modern and and especially in the city of Chicago, well located for economical operation, and the company is in position to produce iron and steel at low cost, according to many authorities.

The annual report of the Lackawanna Steel Company is of interest in showing attention today than ever before. This of the year ender Dec. 31, 1908. Net they are based, and also from the fact income, together with charges and sur- that they are superior to a first mort-

IRRIGATION BOND WESTERN BANKER

Steel Company Shows a Big Says This Form of Security Is Becoming Very Much in Favor Among Financiers in Central and Middle West.

Robert O. Morrison, president of the Farmers Mortgage & Loan Company, Denver, Col., is the author of an interesting article on irrigation bonds in National Finance, in which he says:

"In the past few years the irrigation bond has made its appearance in the financial world, and has met with a very marked degree of favor in the financial centers of the central and middle West, where a large amount of these bonds has been sold in the past three or four vears.

CONSUMERS OF COPPER METAL

Big Orders Are Expected to waterway between those two points.

A SMALLER OUTPUT

The steady and almost uninterrupted decline in the quotations for copper metal has made consumers hesitate about contracting for large supplies. Business for some days past has been very largely on 10,725,602 in 1906. a hand-to-mouth basis, so that it is thought that when once convinced that bottom prices have been reached for the metal big orders will result which probably will take all the supplies now in

It is said that copper production is being curtailed slightly as the western smelting concerns are smelting less ore and are thus sending less copper to the East to be refined. Reports of a further curtailment in the output of the red metal were current vesterday, but it is not known that any concerted action has been taken by producers with this end ters to bring about a reduction in the output of the copper metal.

It is reported that a number of the more important financiers of Boston who are concerned in mining are shaping up a plan for bringing about a "community of interest," whereunder the producers of more than one half of the copper from North American mines will work together.

The project is of such magnitude and involves so many interests which have never before cared to consider the subject of a "community of interest" that progress is slow.

A decidedly better feeling developed in the copper metal situation yesterday. While the transactions thus far had been for moderate amounts, the inquiry is larger and prices are more firmly held than on any previous day for a week

> Pettigrew, Bright & Company, Boston, say: "We expect gradual hardening of the market, gradual growth of confidence, gradual expansion of activity, and a great summer-not that we shall have to wait for the dog days, by any means. We expect 'discounting,' some more of it, as the tariff takes shape and we get a line on the crop prospects. About every thing else is in favor of a better market. Best of all, we want it; 'sunshine' is in the heart and the spring is at hand-a new season, beginning a new era of our land, we believe. And it is a good time to get in at the start of the movement. At any rate, it is time to act, not to stand by as a mere looker on. This market looks like broadening and that soon and substantially."

Samaritans in White and Black

Color lines were hid beneath the broad bands of mercy in the business heart of Memphis, Tenn., recently, when two men, the one white and the other black, went into seeming danger for the sake of a bird. And the bird had never been seen before by either man, being only one of the thousands of pigeons that constantly nest all over the city. Laden with a long cord, the pigeon, evidently intent on home building, had entangled the contribution to its nest in a network of wires, and in endeavor to free the cord had entangled itself yet more firmly. The string was long enough to drop the bird almost to the street, where it hung, fluttering desperately but ineffectually.

A crowd of a hundred or more gathered, pitying the poor thing's struggles, but as rain was falling and the wet cord hung over two trolley wires, all hesitated to touch the string. Finally one, bolder than the others, stepped forward and attempted to release the bird. The cord was so twisted, however, that he could do nothing without a knife, and so announced to the eager assembly. Without a moment's pause a negro drayman pushed his way through the crowd, a huge "barlow" in his hand, and cut the bird's enslaving bonds. Amid the cheers of all the released bird, determined to save at least a part of its building, soared upward, a piece of the cord yet in

Oranges as Decoration

The annual golf club ball in the main dining hall of the Breakers at Palm Beach, lately, was a brilliant event. Great branches of orange trees, heavy with fruit, completely hid the massive pillars, though it must be stated that the boughs were not actually of orange trees and displayed but borrowed ruit, carefully tied on. Garlands and ropes of green entwined with electric lights marked the archways and hung from the rotunda, while hundreds of massive palms completely hid the walls. The midnight supper which followed the battle of confetti and a dance was served on the piazzas, which were decorated with palms and varicolored lights. - New York

Thy Will Be Done

I asked the New Year for some motto sweet,

Some rule of life by which to guide my feet;

. This, "God's will to know."

The answer came, "Nay, this remember too,

Again I asked, "Is there still more to tell?"

"Yea, this one thing all other things above,

And once again the answer sweetly fell,

But ere the question into silence died,

God's will to love."

I asked and paused. He answered soft and low,

"Will knowledge then suffice, New Year?" I cried.

COTTAGE FIREPLACE

FIREPLACE FINISHED IN THE ROUGH

Here is a chimney piece from a cottage home. Natural stones are used for the whole chimney except that the shelf is of wood. Such a fireplace gives a rustic air to the country house, that is further carried out in the exposed beams of the ceiling. The small panes of the windows also give picturesqueness. The window seats here are chimney seats as well. The out-of-doors atmosphere of such a living room is hinted, too, in the trophies for athletic prowess displayed on the mantel.

Threatened Encroachment

Upon Central Park

The chief opponents to the plan of building the National Academy of Design in Central Park are the settlement workers on the East Side in New York. They are striving constantly to extend the breathing spaces in the city and naturally are opposed to a step that opens the way for further encroachment in the park, as this academy can not offer the plea that it is a civic institution, as the Museum of Art and of Natural History are. Mr. Howard Bradstreet of the Parks and Playgrounds Association remarked that New York is far behind Boston in such things. "People in Boston would laugh at such a proposal as this."

The motive of all Christian work must be to know more of God, to learn something more every day of the truth of wind, the lace cap over blue or pink silk, being, and it is manifest that exactly in proportion as this truth is assimilated will man begin to manifest the fruits of the Spirit. For, as Mrs. Eddy writes, on page 450 of Science and Health, "If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above, not from beneath, and they bear as of old the fruits of the Spirit." Now the fruits of the Spirit, Paul wrote to the Galatians, are "love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law." powerful enough to land it there.
